

Put a Stop to Bullying

The person you called fat is now very thin,
He threw all his well-earned sweets in the bin.

The person you called nerdy now doesn't learn in class,
Now all his exams he's failed to pass.

The person you bullied is now afraid,
He is now in need of desperate aid.

The person you teased for being small,
Now cries all alone in the deserted hall.

The person you called stupid for being alone,
Has no one to speak to or to phone.

Why are you a bully? Why are you mean?
Why are you a lean, dream-killing machine?

If you were bullied, you wouldn't find it fun,
You'd feel really scared, alone and glum.

Let's stop bullying to make the world a better place,
Let's put a smile on everyone's face!
